

ERLANGEN. EARLY MODERN URBANIZATION: TOLERANCE, GEOMETRY AND FUTURE PLANNINGS

by Prof. Dr. Wolfgang Wüst

Newcomers' Club, 1.st of June 2016
vhs club international (Egloffstein'sches Palais), Friedrichstraße 17, Erlangen
3:00 – 4:00 pm

When on a certain Friday, March the 17th, of 1686, the first couple of French refugees arrived here in Erlangen – after a perilous journey taking them right through the heart of Europe –, this place was still a small, snug little country town in one of the many provinces of the Imperial Empire of Germany. The story about the city's future with her bilingual (French and German), multi-confessional society and her strange uniformed architecture will be part of our lecture.

Coloured copper engraving, Erlangen („Christian-Erlang“), 1721

